Brain Research 0-5
February 8, 2012
Area 2 – Child Development and Learning

As with the human brain is an unfinished masterpiece, though it is not entirely a blank canvas in the early years (birth-Pre-K), the brain has a genetic potential and is primed to be painted with experiences. We will discuss the developing brain, what we know from research thus far, and how to create environments to promote healthy brain development.

Learning Outcomes
The learner will:

- Understand the different areas of the brain and their function.
- Learn about biological and environmental factors that influence brain development.
- Design the "ideal" program to support healthy brain development.
